State disability plan consultation

Work on the new State disability plan will be starting again.

Work on the new plan stopped because of Coronavirus (COVID-19).

Coronavirus (COVID-19) is a virus that can make people sick.

Work on the plan can start again because it is safer now.

Coronavirus (COVID-19) has made things hard for people with disability.

Some things that we have heard have been hard are:

- getting information quickly in ways you can understand

- getting help to see a doctor

- getting food and other things people need like medicine

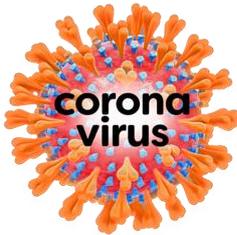

- having enough money or knowing where to get more money

- people have been feeling lonely

Because things have been hard for people, we want you to tell us how we can make things better.

The new State disability plan will talk about Coronavirus (COVID-19).

The plan will include ways the government will help people be safe and healthy in the future.

We want you to tell us about this year and what it felt like.

Some of the things you can tell us are:

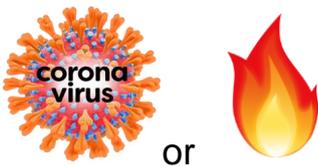

1. What are some of the things that have been hard for people because of Coronavirus (COVID-19)

2. What can the government do to make things better

3. What should we do to make things better just in case there is another emergency.

Another emergency could be something like Coronavirus (COVID-19) or something like a bushfire

4. Now that people are more safe from Coronavirus (COVID-19) how can we make things better for people
